The Knowledge Culture

“Shared beliefs and values about knowledge and the role of knowledge in the company or organization and, as appropriate, in the larger society”

Characteristics of the knowledge culture:

- Collaboration is a given – and expected – at all levels
- The role of information technology and communication in the knowledge development/knowledge sharing (KD/KS) process is acknowledged and enthusiastically embraced
- The intellectual foundations for the effort are respected – the intellectual quest is not disdained

Knowledge Strategy in The Knowledge Culture

- Knowledge strategy connects knowledge development and knowledge sharing (KD/KS) with organizational goals, specifically to outcomes supporting the achievement of the organizational mission
- As such, knowledge strategy aligns intellectual resources, knowledge assets, and environmental strengths with the organizational/corporate business strategy, thus creating a knowledge culture

KD/KS in the Knowledge Culture

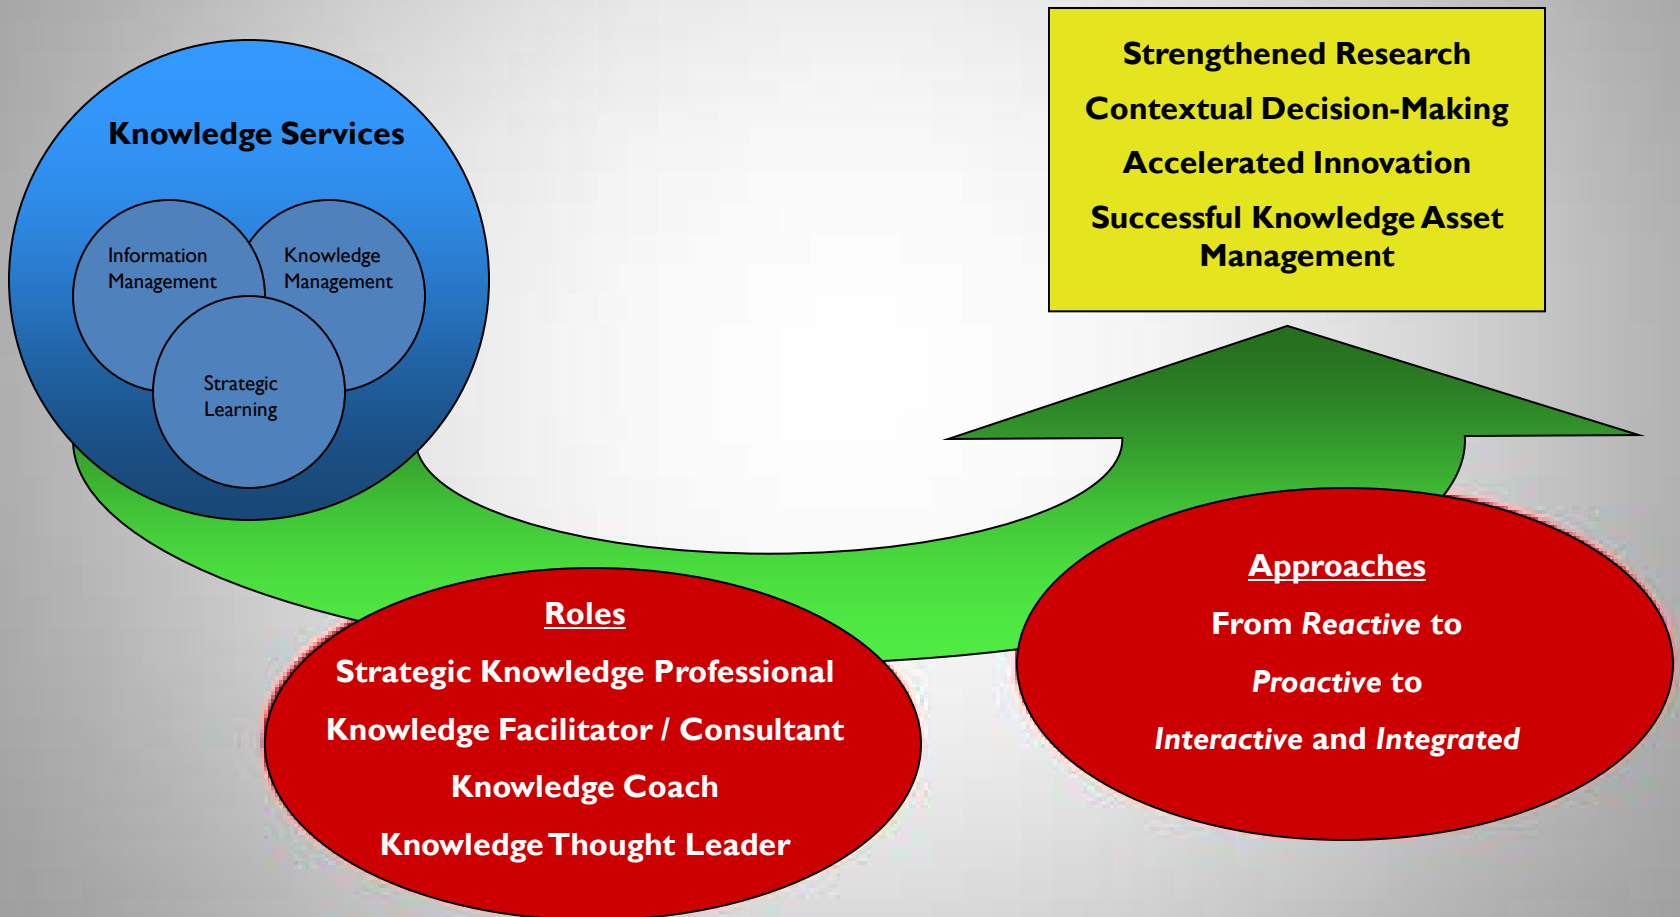

- Both knowledge strategy and business strategy are implemented through KD/KS
- KD/KS = Strategic Learning (“anything you learn that helps you do your job better”)
- KD/KS is managed, organized, promoted, and conveyed throughout the organization via knowledge services

Knowledge Services Defined

Knowledge services is the management and service-delivery methodology that converges information management, knowledge management, and strategic learning into a single overarching operational function.

Knowledge Services

Knowledge Services

As an operational function, knowledge services provides an operational base for knowledge asset management, the management discipline that takes its roots from asset management, knowledge management, and systems thinking

Knowledge Services

Added value:

- The relationship between technology and knowledge is strengthened throughout the organization
- Strategic knowledge professionals – as knowledge thought leaders – drive the enterprise-wide knowledge function

Strategic Knowledge Professionals

Knowledge services is provided to the organizational workforce through the strategic knowledge staff who...

- use information management, knowledge management, and strategic learning skills and competencies to curate and manage content across the organization
- take ownership of the organization's knowledge assets and provide management and service delivery from an enterprise-wide perspective, not focusing on a single operation, function, or business unit
